GAMES: at 4501 N Clarendon Ave, Chicago.

Capoeira is a Brazilian martial art that originated as a means for enslaved Africans in Brazil to fight back and seek freedom. Today, it serves as a fun game and community activity for everyone. Participants can learn acrobatics, kicks, how to play an instrument, and even a little Portuguese.

In Capoeira, we begin with a warm-up that includes jogging, stretching, and various movements. Next, we play instruments and sing. After that, we perform the ginga, typically around 20 to 100 times. We then work on acrobatics, whether for beginners or advanced practitioners, practicing handstands, cartwheels, and macaco. Following this, we practice kicks such as the meia lua de frente (half moon front kick).

Last but not least, we form a roda (circle). Some people play instruments while we create a U shape, with the opening facing the musicians. The two individuals closest to the instruments move forward, crouch, and clap before performing an acrobatic move into the center, where they engage in a playful exchange with their opponent.

TODAY IN SPORTS NEWS

This week's sports news highlights GIRLS Flag Football, which has recently been added as a high school sport option. Introduced in Illinois in 2021, the league expanded to over 50 teams by 2022 and now boasts over 100 teams across the Chicagoland area! It's essential for us to participate and show our support for this incredible initiative. None of this would be possible without the collaboration of Nike, the Chicago Bears, and NFL Flag with CPS.

SEL & SPORTS

By: Mr. Immanuel

Integrating social-emotional learning (SEL) into sports enhances athletes' well-being. Coaches promote relationship-building during informal time and support self-management in warm-ups. Playtime focuses on responsible decision-making, boosting players' confidence, while the cool-down encourages self-awareness and social awareness through group reflections. Finally, transitions out reinforce relationships, ensuring players leave feeling valued. Overall, SEL fosters personal growth, resilience, and stronger team dynamics.
